Agency: Bureau of Labor and Industries (BOLI)
Division: Commissioner’s Office

Program Description

Oregon’s Bureau of Labor and Industries is responsible for promoting the development of a highly skilled, competitive and safe Oregon workforce per ORS chapter 651. The Bureau partners with government, labor, business and education to ensure a skilled workforce.

The Commissioner's Office provides policy direction and overall management of the Bureau's programs. Internal support services provide budget and fiscal control, employee services, and information systems management. The Commissioner's Office is responsible for maintaining positive relationships with representatives of labor and industry. All administrative oversight of the Bureau of Labor and Industries is conducted in this office; including fiscal, policy and procedural, legal, and legislative decisions. The Commissioner’s Office includes the Commissioner and Executive Assistant, the Deputy Commissioner responsible for the daily operations of the Bureau, Legislative and Communications Directors and a Legal Policy Advisor.

The Bureau of Labor and Industries is headed by the Commissioner, who is elected for a term of four years and must be a resident of Oregon for more than five years. The Commissioner enforces laws regulating the employment of minors and adults; the protection of health, lives and limbs of individuals engaged in manufacturing; the protection of employee wages; the protection of employee civil rights and the regulation and equitable practices regarding industries employing apprentices.

Division: Apprenticeship and Training

Program Description
The Apprenticeship and Training Division regulates the apprenticeship process in a variety of occupations and industries in Oregon. The Division works with businesses and labor to ensure training and employment opportunities and workforce standards. The Division registers all apprentices and maintains a registry of occupational skill standards and agreements between employers and apprentices. In addition, the Division works with local apprenticeship committees to ensure equal opportunities in training and employment for apprentices.

Support staff is responsible for maintaining the Division’s administrative support staff also maintains the records and information for the Oregon State Apprenticeship and Training Council (OSATC). The OSATC establishes apprenticeship and training policy and registers individual programs. The OSATC is comprised of eight members, each appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The council has statutory authority, in collaboration with the Division, to oversee apprenticeship committees, programs and policies, and approves apprenticeship committee members. The Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor and Industries serves as the chairperson, and the Director of the Apprenticeship and Training Division serves as its secretary. The OSATC fulfills the standards set forth by 29 CFR §§29 and 30 requiring states to establish State Apprenticeship Councils.

APPRENTICE TRACKING SYSTEM (ATD MIS)
Program Description
The Civil Rights Division is responsible for enforcement of laws granting job seekers and workers equal access to jobs, promotions, benefits, and a work environment free from discrimination and harassment. The division is also responsible for the protection of those seeking housing, access to public accommodations, equal access to career schools, and workers compensation rights.

The division investigates complaints filed by aggrieved persons alleging unlawful practices, and when appropriate refers complaints to the agency’s Administrative Prosecution Unit for contested case hearings. The division receives inquiries from individuals seeking to file a complaint under the division’s jurisdiction. Communication occurs in the form of telephone calls, written correspondence, faxed information, and email inquiries. The complaint process typically begins when a Questionnaire is completed and submitted to the division. Division staff may interview the claimant in order to draft a perfected complaint. Once a complaint is signed, notarized, and returned to our agency, a case file is opened. Cases are assessed to determine what amount of investigation is appropriate. Division staff examine the information and allegations submitted by the complainant and determine whether to proceed with further investigation. Investigation typically involves interviews with complainants, respondents and witnesses, and the division may request and receive documentary evidence from any relevant entity. The investigation concludes with a memorandum recommending dismissal or issuance of a notice stating the division’s determination that substantial evidence supports one or more of the complaint allegations. If the division finds substantial evidence of unlawful practices, the division may seek to eliminate the effects of the unlawful discriminatory act(s) by conference, settlement and persuasion. If no settlement agreement is reached after a Substantial Evidence Determination, the division retains the discretion to administratively dismiss most complaints, or proceed to a contested case hearing.

Program Description

The Wage and Hour Division accepts claims and complaints from workers relating to their wages and working conditions including minimum wage and overtime, child labor, farm and forest labor contractors, private employment agencies and prevailing wage rate issues. The Administration Section is responsible for the overall administrative and communication duties of the division including public awareness and relations and business communications.

The Division assists employees whose employers have gone out of business without sufficient funds to pay employees. The Division provides payment of employee final wages through the Wage Security Fund.

Division staff supports the Prevailing Wage Advisory Committee. The Committee is appointed by the Labor Commissioner and provides advice and assistance to the Bureau in the administration of prevailing wage rate law.

Intake staff provide the initial contact and liaison between the Division and the general public and is responsible for recording initial complaints and forwarding the complaints to the proper channels. Intake staff does not handle the investigation of wage claims and complaints itself, but the section is responsible for maintaining the files that have been closed. Staff in the Portland, Salem, and Eugene offices provides intake services.

Program Description

The Prevailing Wage Rate Section is responsible for publishing the prevailing wage rates to be paid on public works contracts per ORS 279C.800 - .870. The rates are determined by the Labor Commissioner and are based on data collected in the annual Construction Industry Occupational Wage Survey. ORS 279C.830 requires applicable wage rates be incorporated into bid specifications for all public works contracts subject to Oregon’s prevailing wage law. The Section is authorized to enforce PWR law including penalizing contractors for violations of wage and hour regulations and debarring contractors from being awarded public works contracts for a period up to three years. The Prevailing Wage Rate Section utilizes investigative methods and audits complaints in order to monitor and regulate fair wage and hour rights for Oregon workers.

Government agencies files documentation on all capital construction projects they will not be contracting out to provide cost comparisons and summaries for planned public improvement projects.
